Daine Myles

HUMOROUS FICTION

Deni walked over to the chair Sabrina walked to and patted the seat. Sabrina draped her and said she would be right back. She had to go mix the color, and she had a surprise for her. Deni couldn't wait to see what Sabrina had in store for her. Sabrina reappeared from behind the curtain and turned Deni away from the mirror. She immediately went to work parting Deni's hair and applying color. When she finished with the last foil, she called Cindy over and looked at the pic she brought with her. She draped Cindy and disappeared behind the curtain.

When she returned, she asked, "Do you want to watch? Or you want me to turn you around like Miss Deni?"

Cindy said, "Go ahead and turn me around. That way I can be surprised like Deni."

Sabrina turned the chair around Sabrina's assistant took Cindy over to the shampoo bowl. Deni sat in the chair again for Sabrina to start her trim and style. When she turned Deni around to look at herself, Deni couldn't believe her eyes. Sabrina had not gone a shade lighter—she had gone two shades lighter. Deni was stunned. She saw this beautiful young lady sitting before her, looking more like a movie star.
