

Hurting missing love

Lately I've been feeling like there's no way to find love for me individuals don't understand how hard it is to communicate with individuals when you have a developmental disability especially with the with of the species ( female ) especially in my condition because individuals and won't take me seriously no matter how genuine I accepted me with my feelings and put in my heart out there and it really hurts because I really desire a true loving relationship and it does not be sexual in nature somebody just spend some time and be able to talk to from time to time however individuals can make you feel like you're to other people and you're so love can sometimes be be a cold hard place but there's no individual in the world that desires to be alone still a whole life and definitely not this individual.